5. Data Protection and Security Policy

- Introduction

Data Protection and Security Policy outlines how we collect, use, and protect the information you provide when using our website.

a. Personal Information

The personal data collected while using the Website are generally not shared with other parties, unless otherwise specified in this data protection declaration. However, there are exceptions to this rule, such as mandatory transmissions of personal data to government agencies and authorities, as well as private holders of rights as required by applicable law or under court or official rulings. Additionally, personal data may be disclosed to state agencies and authorities in cases of attacks on our legal interests, for law enforcement and prosecution purposes.

To ensure the smooth operation of the Website and the execution of its functions and offers, we rely on carefully selected external service providers. These service providers process your personal data on our behalf, following our instructions and under a specific contract, for the purposes stated in the data protection declaration. They are contractually obligated to adhere strictly to this data protection declaration, as well as applicable data protection laws and our directions (processor pursuant to Art. 28 GDPR). The same obligations apply to any subcontractors used by our processors, with our prior consent.

Furthermore, we depend on service providers to provide, service, and maintain IT systems through processing under a contract.

- Use of Information

The personal data provided will be utilized for direct-marketing purposes, encompassing an email newsletter or postal advertising. The specific personal data that will be processed includes the form of address, name, mailing address, email address, and telephone number.

Our legitimate interest in marketing our products serve as the legal basis for direct mail marketing, as stated in Art. 6(1) (f) GDPR.

If you have granted your consent, we will process the necessary data to keep you informed about our products and services, as well as our enterprise, through an email newsletter. This processing will be carried out in accordance with Art. 6(1) (a) GDPR.

To analyze the open rates and click behavior of our newsletter users, we conduct statistical evaluations and utilize Optimizely Campaign. These evaluations involve collecting and processing connection data, as well as data on users' click and usage behavior. The legal basis for conducting such analyses is Art. 6(1) (a) GDPR.

- Data Security

a. Secure Transmission

To guarantee the safe transfer of data between our servers and users, we employ encryption protocols that are widely accepted in the industry. Our aim is to provide comprehensive protection against unauthorized access to your data, which is why we implement both technical and organizational measures. Our website utilizes encryption technology, ensuring that your information is transmitted securely over the internet via TLS encryption. You can easily identify this by the closed lock symbol in your browser's status bar and the https:// at the beginning of the address line.

b. Access Controls

Access to personal information is restricted to authorized personnel only, and we regularly review our access controls.

- Third-Party Services

The personal data collected on the Website is primarily processed within EU member states. However, if necessary, we may transmit personal data to countries outside of the European Union and the European Economic Area, but only after informing you explicitly.

If you have given your consent to data processing by Google and Vimeo services, certain data collected by them will be shared with affiliated companies such as Alphabet Inc. and Google LLC, which are registered in the U.S. Additionally, other service providers of Google and Vimeo may also receive this data. To ensure the protection of your personal data, Google and Vimeo utilize standard contractual clauses that have been approved by the European Commission.

- User Rights

Users can ask for the information regarding their personal data that we are processing. In case of inaccuracy of the data, there is a right to correction or prohibition of its processing. Users can ask for the blocking and deletion of their data if there is no further reason for its process or when legal obligations require such action. On the contrary, when it becomes difficult to effect erasure by reason of statutory or employment agreements, tax and commerce codes, or any other law in point, blocking of the data will be observed. Users also enjoy the right to transfer their data. Users can request to exercise these rights by writing to info@ittengineering.de.
